2023 – 2024 Annual Report

President and CEO Message

2023-2024 has been another great year for the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan. Our theme for this year is "Celebrating the Past, Focused on the Future."

Joanne Bracken, our CEO of 25 years retired on March 28th. Our Board underwent a CEO Search and hired Kaleta Strain as our new CEO. Both Joanne (left) and Kaleta (right) are pictured on the cover with the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan's 2024 Honourary Lifetime Member, Edna Parrot (center).

As we embraced transition, we truly lived our theme; we paused to celebrate all the accomplishments of the organization this past year, while also focusing on future efforts.

The incredible work done over the past year and the tremendous impact that our former CEO Joanne Bracken made in her tenure is inspiring.

We also remain focused on the future – what plans lie ahead of us, the challenges we may face, the incredible team we have to lead the way, and the tremendous importance that the work of the Alzheimer Society continues to have.

This past year, with the help of the Change Collective, the Alzheimer Society conducted stakeholder consultations to inform our strategic planning efforts. Themes we heard during this process include the strength of our support services, reputation, and partnerships; the need to focus more on awareness of dementia; and, the need to continue to advocate for policy and system change.

Since 2019, the Society has seen a 290% increase in referrals from health care professionals who diagnose and treat.

The majority of our clients agree that they have better strategies for coping with Alzheimer's disease and other types of dementia after accessing our programs and services.

We asked for an additional $1 million dollars from the Government of Saskatchewan this year to help us increase our capacity to serve the increasing numbers of clients. Unfortunately, we were not successful in receiving these funds. However, we have continued to receive over $1.3 million from the Government annually. We are thankful for our government funding to help us provide vital support across Saskatchewan and we will continue to work to advocate for support and funding.

Our Board continues to recognize the impact that research has to change everything. A breakthrough in research is what will bring the most significant changes for people living with dementia, and their care partners. Our Board prioritized raising funds for research and has set a goal of raising an additional $4 million dollars to advance research outcomes. To date, we have raised over $2.4 million and we will be launching our public phase of this campaign this fall.

The second edition of the Landmark Study was also released earlier this year, complementing our strategic planning work. The report highlights the changing faces of dementia, how healthcare inequities are shaping the experiences of people living with dementia across Canada, and action items for Alzheimer Societies, health care systems, researchers, and governments. This is critical information to expand and enhance our efforts to help underserved groups and populations in our province.

The Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan is successful because of the dedication of our volunteers and the generosity of our many donors. Without you and your support, our work simply would not be possible. Thank you for being the caring and compassionate supporters you are and all that you make possible.

We look forward to your continued support to help us meet the needs of the increasing number of people who rely on the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan for vital support and services.

Growing Our Community of Support

The Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan empowers people to live well with dementia through the delivery of programs, services, advocacy, awareness, and research. We regularly engage communities to learn about their needs and collaborate to address them.

Pictured is our Dementia Helpline Coordinator, Shaelyn Serron, who attended the Nurse Practitioner's Conference in Regina to promote our First Link® Program and referral services to help support families and individuals with dementia they may treat.

Enhancing Alzheimer Society programs and services to improve client experiences.

Primary Health Care Memory Clinics

Primary Health Care Memory Clinics are becoming a more common and person-centred option for rural Saskatchewan residents to access a dementia diagnosis. These clinics can help more people receive an assessment closer to home in a day, reducing travel time, costs, and other barriers rural residents may encounter.

An Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan First Link Coordinator is integrated into every Primary Health Care Memory Clinic, whether it’s during the clinic itself, or for follow-up after the clinic.

Hub Communities

To help support the unique needs of rural residents, our First Link Coordinators are spending regularly scheduled, intentional time in numerous rural ‘Hub’ communities across the province, in addition to communities where our Resource Centres are located.

Hub communities presently include Humboldt, Shellbrook and Big River, Maple Creek, and Meadow Lake.

Enriching our organizational capabilities to engage diverse communities and meet diverse needs across the province.

The Landmark Study

This spring, the Alzheimer Society of Canada released, "The Many Faces of Dementia," the second Landmark Study Report.

"The Many Faces of Dementia" explores the diversity of who is experiencing dementia in Canada, variations in risk and care across ethnic and racialized populations, how sex and gender can impact a person's experience with dementia, and the increase of young onset dementia.

Understanding the unique needs and experiences of diverse communities is a key step in improving the quality of life for people with dementia and their care partners.

We have amended our client database to include new indicators to collect demographic information for each client including gender identity, race/ethnicity, language at birth for the person living with dementia, and sexual orientation.

92% of our staff report seeing positive examples of diversity, equity and inclusion at the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan.

We have also committed to the following priorities to help the Society become more diverse, equitable, and inclusive:

- Expanding service delivery to underserved groups and populations in the province.
- Enhancing programs and services to be culturally sensitive and to address diverse needs.
- Improving the client experience through deeper connections with the Alzheimer Society and strengthen connections to services in the community.
- Expanding marketing and communications to targeted groups and underserved communities.

Advocating to targeted groups for improved client outcomes and improved dementia practices.

On April 17, 2023, the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan facilitated a Dementia Awareness Day and Reception at the Saskatchewan Legislature to advocate for better support for people living with dementia and their care partners in the province. Pictured left to right from the Alzheimer Society are: Peta Gay Watson-Jones, First Link Coordinator; Shaelyn Serron, Dementia Helpline Coordinator; and Becky Quist, Revenue Development Coordinator.

In 2022, over 10,000 care partners in Saskatchewan provided 12.9 million hours of unpaid care, which equates to $160 million worth of care.

We surveyed our care partner clients about which services and supports would be the most helpful in their caregiving roles. The top three priorities they named are:

- Education opportunities about dementia
- Education and support for responsive behaviours
- Access to adult day support programs

“Care partners need to be supported financially and emotionally and provided training so they are equipped for their caregiving responsibilities.”

– Joanne Bracken, outgoing CEO, Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan

Learn More Live Well

As part of our commitment to supporting people living with dementia in the community, we researched and developed dementia friendly signage and other way-finding considerations for our provincial office in Regina. We consulted with and engaged people with lived experience with dementia throughout the design process and installation.

One of the many ways the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan empowers people to live well with dementia is through our public awareness initiatives, which include public presentations.

Increase Understanding of Dementia

Our annual Understanding Dementia event was presented by Conexus Credit Union and featured Dr. Megan Surkan, Assistant Professor Geriatric Medicine, from the University of Saskatchewan.

Risk Reduction

40% of dementias can be prevented through lifestyle choices. Earlier this year, we launched a presentation that explores simple actions people can take to reduce their risk of developing dementia. The presentation also contains information for people who have already been diagnosed with dementia.

Our Risk Reduction presentation is offered virtually in rotation with our ABC's of Dementia presentation.

Our presentations brought in 380 new people to the Society and received 8000 views on YouTube.

Increase Awareness of Brain Health

Dr. Cindy Barha Assistant Professor in the Faculty of Kinesiology at the University of Calgary and Canada Research Chair (Tier II) in Neuroscience, Brain Health and Exercise.

Dr. Cindy Barha from the University of Calgary was the guest speaker during our Healthier Brains presentation in March. Dr. Barha spoke about the benefits of exercise on cognitive abilities throughout life, with a specific focus on the benefits of exercise for women.

“It’s wonderful to share ideas about how small improvements can make a huge difference for people living with dementia.”

– Community Conversation attendee

Community Conversations

We all have a role to play in raising community awareness about the importance of reducing the stigma around dementia and making our communities more accessible for people living with dementia and their care partners.

The Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan hosts Community Conversations to highlight dementia friendly collaboration that is taking place within our community of support. Each Community Conversation features a panel of experts from various fields and sectors across the province (e.g., Researchers, Librarians, Health Care Professionals). Panelists discuss relevant information and strategies they have utilized to become more dementia friendly and how those strategies can be adapted to other businesses, organizations, and communities.

Dr. Allison Cammer and Julie Bietel from the University of Saskatchewan were panelists during our November Community Conversation, which focused on reducing the risks of dementia through nutrition and socialization.

Recordings of our presentations can be found on our Youtube Channel @alzheimerask

Unlocking Research

During our Spotlight on Research event, seven Saskatchewan researchers – whose projects the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan funded between 2023 and 2024 – shared information about their current studies.

Dr. Bryce Stoliker, Centre for Forensic Behavioural Science and Justice Studies, University of Saskatchewan; Dr. Krista Lagimodiere, Division of Geriatric Medicine, Department of Medicine, University of Saskatchewan; Christie Tetreault, Centre for Forensic Behavioural Science and Justice Studies, University of Saskatchewan; Dr. Arlene Kent-Wilkinson, College of Nursing, University of Saskatchewan; Louise Castillo, Clinical Psychology, University of Regina; Dr. Allison Cammer, College of Nutrition and Pharmacy, University of Saskatchewan; and, Dr. Darrell Mousseau, Department of Psychiatry and Director of the Cell Signalling Laboratory, University of Saskatchewan.

Maximizing Research Outcomes

The Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan funds dementia research through strategic partnerships with the Alzheimer Society Research Program and Saskatchewan Health Research Foundation. Between 2023 and 2024, Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan invested $340,940 towards unlocking dementia research.

Alzheimer Society Research Program

“My goal is to take a collaborative approach to improving the accuracy of observational pain tools with the hope that it can reduce suffering and potentially save lives.”

Andrew McLennan was granted one of the Alzheimer Society Research Program’s 2024 Doctoral Awards, co-funded by Saskatchewan Health Research Foundation. Andrew and his research team from the University of Regina are working with local caregivers to evaluate several observational pain tools for older adults with dementia.

“We... can generate human brain organoids from a blood sample. In a preliminary test, we were able to detect markers of pathology that confirmed a diagnosis of late-onset Alzheimer’s disease in a female [person].”

Dr. Darrell Mousseau was awarded one of the Alzheimer Society Research Program’s 2024 Proof of Concept Grants, co-funded by Saskatchewan Health Research Foundation. Dr. Mousseau and his research team from the University of Saskatchewan are using patient-derived brain organoids – ‘brains-in-a-dish’ – to support a diagnosis of sporadic, late-onset Alzheimer’s disease.

Saskatchewan Health Research Foundation

Jennifer O’Brien and Peter Hedlin from the University of Saskatchewan were awarded the Solutions Program - Innovation Grant in the focus area of Alzheimer’s Disease & Other Dementias.

Changiz Taghibiglou, Sara Mardanisamani, Andrew Kirk, and Kerry Bishop from the University of Saskatchewan were awarded the Solutions Program - Impact Grant in the focus area of Alzheimer’s Disease & Other Dementias.

Unlock Dementia Research Campaign

The Unlock Dementia Research Campaign continues to be a priority to raise $4 million to support research that will help people in Saskatchewan who are living with dementia – and their care partners – to live their best life possible.

In September 2024, we will publicly launch our Unlock Dementia Research Campaign, featuring Curt Koethler, a person living with dementia. Curt graciously agreed to share his story to help raise awareness for the need for better dementia care, treatments, and a cure. The campaign will also feature stories from local donors who are passionate about supporting dementia research.

“My life is full, and I am still doing things that I enjoy thanks to the Alzheimer Society.

They are doing great work. Work that is made possible by research.”

Improving our Community's Experience

During our annual staff development meeting, a panel of people with lived experience with dementia gave insight on how to empower people with dementia to live well.

Pictured left to right are: Kelley Jo Burke (care partner), Eric Eggertson (person living with dementia), Jacquie Messer-Lepage (care partner and Board Member, Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan), and Gaylene Drew (care partner). Dr. Megan O'Connell (not pictured), Department of Psychology and Health Studies and Associate Member of the Canadian Centre for Health and Safety in Agriculture, University of Saskatchewan, and Member of Rural and Remote Memory Clinic and Rural Dementia Action Research (RaDAR) teams, joined the panel virtually.

Engaging clients and supporters in meaningful ways

For nearly a decade, Judy Leggott has significantly impacted the lives of those affected by dementia through her participation and fundraising in the IG Wealth Management Walk for Alzheimer’s.

Judy’s motivation is deeply personal. In 2015, her husband Glen was diagnosed with Young onset Alzheimer’s disease at the age of 60. The diagnosis was shocking, but the support from the Alzheimer’s Society provided them with crucial information and programs that helped them navigate this difficult time. Judy and Glen joined support groups, the Society’s Minds in Motion® program, and found a community who understood their struggles.

Judy participates in the IG Wealth Management Walk for Alzheimer’s to seek answers and support for others with similar experiences. Judy has helped her team raise an impressive $12,250 and has led one of Saskatoon’s top walk teams, “Walking for Legs” in 2022 and 2023.

Members of Judy’s team participating on the day of walk in Saskatoon. Judy and her team members believe that all people with dementia, along with their families and caregivers, should receive the essential support and resources they need.
